    - warehouse is near the haunted shrine
    - flag building is the hospital
    - Irvan seems resigned
        - his arm can sometimes be controlled by higher ups in the consortium
        - Galsariad is corrupted as hell
        - it seems like Irvan has a (one sided) crush on Galsariad
        - Ayo has a spear of Grummsh and it seems like she is listening to it
        - Maggie is no longer her usual jovial self anymore
    - Irvan needs to go down
        - he says it's the only way to remove the corruption their party is plagued with
        - he doesn't belive there is a way for the Mighty 5 to go down without the consortium
    - the party convinces him that the consortium is going down and that they must find another way
        - the Cobalt Soul might accept them if the party helps and the Mighty 5 are truely willing to change
        - when the pary goes to save Quiwynns mentor they will try to get the Mighty 5 to listen and come too
        - Irvan shares Maggie's poem
            - a way for the party to know they come in good faith towards the Mighty 5 to help them escape the consortium's grasp
            - a proof for Maggie at least that the party didn't kill Irvan and that he is on board with it > “ In the desert's heat, under the sky so blue, The Vermilion Dream delves into secrets anew. Their council of masters, with tongues so silver, Seek knowledge forbidden, with passion they quiver.

> But caution, dear friends, for danger abounds, And treachery often within their hallowed grounds. Trust in your instincts, your heart and your might, And beware the shadows that lurk in plain sight.
> For the city of Ank'harel can be both boon and bane, A place of wonder, but also of pain. Yet amidst the chaos, a hero may rise, A shining beacon, lighting up the skies.
> So keep your eyes and ears open wide, And let your courage be your guide. For in this city of mysteries untold, Adventures await, for the brave and the bold."
> poem penned by Maggie Keeneyes

    - Lucy write a deposition
        - only containing true statements
        - painting the Mighty 5 as much as possible as victims of the consortium
        - Irvan reads it and gives corrections if needed
    - Irvan is escorted to the temple of the mentor and the cobalt soul
- temple of the mentor
    - the racist guard is back
        - swap to cobalt soul clothes to show him we are to pass
        - he doesn't let Linda and Luggage pass
    - Irvan is shown to Jamil and Iwo
        - as long as he is true in his words and intention he will be taken care of
        - Lucy gives a copy of the deposition that was written
    - the ruidium shortsword that Irvan used to wield is given
        - still barehanded by Lucy
    - a report with what happened is handed
    - a note that Lucy took in the basement is shared

> “Master Khelkur,
> Our attempts to gain access to the rift have been disastrous. An aboleth haunts the Drowned City. It slaughtered all but one member of our last expedition. The creature calls itself Alyxian—certainly not an aboleth name, but not one I am familiar with either. But know this: Cael Morrow is where we must focus our efforts, lest the Allegiance of Allsight claim the only known source of ruidium for itself.
> Our key to the rift is lost, but we have a spy in the Drowned City searching for it. Meanwhile, we have decided to secure a new headquarters. Please see that First Eclipse is cleared out—and quickly—before the Hands of Ord search the place.
> Humbly,
> Master Dendarron

    - pary takes off towards the hospital
- hospital
    - lots of bodies
